If India wants to be a developed country, it must concentrate on female education. The old African proverb says 'If you educate a man, you educate an individual, but if you educate a woman, you educate an entire family or entire nation.'

The root cause of all the problems like female infanticide, dowry, female suicide, domestic violence, malnutrition, child marriage etc. will be vanished if women are educated.

Education provides an essential qualification to fulfil certain economic, political and cultural functions and improves women's socio-economic status. It brings reduction in inequality.

If we want to uplift the society, we should improve the life standard of our women and for this education is a weapon.

Solar panels require very little maintenance because there are no moving parts. They are easy to install. Their efficiency remained constant over the years. Our government offers several benefits like subsidy, tax benefits and other incentives to those people who install solar panels. One another benefit is that the solar energy system can be used in the remote areas also. Because of its inexhaustible supply and the potential to reduce our power bills, it is expected to become increasingly attractive as a renewable energy source.
